DATE POSTPONED FOR HEARING CONTEST OF WILL OF JAMES FLOOD

More Than a Hundred Subpoenas Issued For Plaintiff in State's Biggest Will Contest Case

Postponement from July 1 to July 20 of the will contest case of Mrs Constance May Gavin against the Flood estate has been announced by Judge George H. Buck. The case was to have opened in the superior court of this county on July 1, but at the request of Attorney Garrett McEnerney and with the agreement of the attorneys for the plaintiff, the matter was postponed until the latter date.

Mrs. Gavin is seeking a daughter's share of the $18,000,000 left by the late James Flood. She claims to have been a daughter of Flood, and that her mother was either Mrs. Rose Flood, first wife of the late millionaire of Mrs. Eudora Willette. She was undecided as to which woman was her mother, and asked permission of the court to file two petitions ,but when this was denied by Judge Buck she filed a single petition naming James Flood as her father and Mrs. Willette as her mother.

Mrs. Willette in her first deposition stated that she was the mother of Mrs. Gavin and that James Flood was the father, but later she repudiated her own statements and declared that she was the mother but that the father was a James Cannon, a property man in the old Grove Street Theatre in San Francisco.

She claims that the child was given by her to Mrs. Rose Flood, and was raised by Rose and James Flood until after the death of the former, when the girl was sent to a convent.

Mrs. Gavin states that James Flood always treated her as a daughter among his friends and that she went by the name of Constance May Flood. After being sent to the convent when Mrs. Rose Flood had died and Flood married the sister of his first wife, Mrs. Gavin claims that she was never again accepted into the Flood household and was never able to see her father when she called at his office.

John Taaffe and Maxwell McNutt, attorney for the plaintiff, have secured the issuance of more than a hundred subpoenas for the plaintiff. It is likely that the case will be a long one.

Rural Schools To Be Studied

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 25 (UP)—Glaring inequalities of opportunity and injust educational handicaps confronting the rural child in California and other states should be corrected.

This is the contention of William John Cooper, United States commissioner of education, and former superintendent of public instruction in California.

As a result of this difference between the educational opportunities offered the rural and urban child, Cooper has called a national conference to be held in Los Angeles beginning July 2.

The meeting will be conducted jointly by the federal office of education, the National Education Association and the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Representatives of all organizations concerned with farm problems also will be invited to participate in the conference.

The principal problem to be solved at the meeting will be the formation of a 10-year plan to build up rural education.

"One of the most important items of such a program would be the matter of finances. It will be the duty of those attending the conference to determine whether they shall endorse the principle that rural education requires a larger unit of administration and taxation so that wealth can be taxed wherever it is located and distributed in such a way as to insure a reasonably educational offering for every child," Cooper stated.

In a report to the state department of education Cooper further stated that the conference would consider the advisability of having Governor Rolph call a state conference of county superintendents, county agents, editors of farm magazines and of the rural press to consider ways and means of assuring the rural children of the state a fair start in life.

The first session of the conference will discuss the next ten years in rural schools; the second, the next ten years in rural life, home, church, press and development of farming, and third, the next ten years in rural child welfare.

Daylight Saving Now Against Law

MADISON, Wis., June 24 (UP)—Anybody who sets his clock by this new-fangled day light savings time in Wisconsin is a criminal subject to a fine and a jail sentence.

Governor Phillip LaFollette signed a bill today prohibiting the use of any other than standard time in the state. If violators of the law say they're sorry, a fine of $25 to $50 awaits them. But if they say they're glad they used daylight time in their calculations, off they will be trundled to jail to stay 10 to 30 days.

LONDON, (UP)—An epitaph quoted by The National Mercury reads "In memory of our father, gone to join his appendix, his tonsils his kidneys, his ear drum and a leg prematurely removed by a hospital surgeon who craved experience."

Judge Refuses New Trial For Highway Grade

Judge Dooling Will Not Hear Suit For Right of Way Second Time

A new trial in the suit of the Joint Highway District No. 9 to secure a right of way around Pedro Mountain by right of eminent domain was refused this week by Judge Maurice T. Dooling, before whom the case was heard several months ago. Judge Dooling at that time set a value of $9500 on the property, a value considered by the highway directors to be too high. A new trial was asked.

The highway district is seeking to secure the former right of way of the abandoned Ocean Shore railroad around Pedro Mountain for the use of the proposed highway from San Francisco to Santa Cruz.

Eagles to Play Here On Sunday

The Redwood City Eagles will take on the Boldeman Chocolates of San Francisco on the high school diamond, Sunday afternoon. The two outfits have been scheduled to meet here twice within the past month, but on each occasion rain interefered. The San Francisco team, then playing under the name of the Walworths, defeated the Eagles here earlier in the season, so Al Bechet's boys are out for revenge next Sunday.

"Brick" Allain, all-around man of the locals, will be on the mound Sunday, Manager Bechet having decided to give his regular pitcher, Ellsworth Hatley, a much needed rest. Hatley has pitched practically every game for the Eagles this season, as well at last season, and Bechet does not want to take any chance of letting him go "stale."

She asks the court to restrain her husband from disposing of community property, and seeks to enjoin Tony Costelly, whom she claims owes money on a note which is community property, from paying it over to her husband pending settlement of the action.

City Will Ask Jail Site OK

San Mateo county supervisors will be asked by the supervisors of San Francisco to allow San Francisco to place its proposed jail on the Sneath ranch in the hills of the northern section of the county. This site will be used for a jail site for San Francisco provided the property can be purchased for $50,000 or less and that a permit may be secured from the San Mateo county supervisors to erect the jail there after the land is secured.

The Sneath ranch, located near the Skyline boulevard north of San Andreas lake ,is being held by its owner at $60,000. The land was appraised by Joseph Phillips, right of way expert of San Francisco, at $41,250, but the city has agreed to pay $50,000 if the owner will compromise on that amount.

When the petition from the City and County of San Francisco comes before the county board of supervisors of this county, which will probably be on July 6, petition adverse to the granting by the supervisors of any jail site in this county for the use of San Francisco will be awaiting it. One petition to this effect has been filed by the County Federation of Women's Clubs, another has been filed by the County Federation of Improvement Clubs. Other petitions against the placing of San Francisco's jail in this county are expected to be filed before the matter comes before the supervisors.

Petitions Out To Gain Permit For Race Track

Supervisors Will Be Asked to Grant Permit For Track Near Redwood

Citizens who favor the admission of race tracks to San Mateo county are busy this week circulating petitions to be presented to the county board of supervisors on July 6, and which ask that the board grant a permit for the construction of the race track proposed to be built by Jean Normile.

The petitions are being circulated throughout the third township of the county, and it is understood, are being signed by a large number of residents. The petition reads as follows:

"We, the undersigned working people, mechanics, and voters of Redwood City and the Third township, protest the summery action of the San Mateo county board of supervisors in taking steps to prevent the proposed Fair Oaks Racing and Polo club establishment.

"We feel that the $1,000,000 to be spent and circulated in and around Redwood City will be of incalculable benefit, especially in face of the current depression. This will help merchants, tradesmen, laborers, mechanics and factories, not only for the period of construction, but also during the holding of events at which time local hotels, restaurants, stores, etc., would be taxed to capacity. If San Bruno receives great benefit from such events, why shouldn't Redwood City?

"We have no interest whatsoever in Fair Oaks Racing and Polo club or any similar project other than the increase in business in this district."

In the mean time District Attorney Swart is working on the race track ordinance ordered by the board of supervisors at the last meeting of the board ,and which will be considered at the same meeting at which the petition will be presented.

SERVICES TO BE HELD TOMORROW FOR PIONEER RECTOR OF SAN MATEO

Pastor in This County Since 1888, Rev. Dr. W. A Brewer, of San Mateo, To be Laid to Rest

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for the Rev. William A. Brewer, rector emeritus of St. Paul's Episcopal church of Burlingame, who passed away Tuesday at his home in Burlingame.

Rev. Brewer was one of the best-known and most respected residents of this community, and his life has been closely identified with the developments of the best interests of this county. He has been a resident of the county since 1865, when he was brought here at the age of 2 years by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Brewer of Detroit, Michigan. Dr. Brewer was also an Episcopal clergyman.

The elder Dr. Brewer founded the Episcopal church in San Mateo in 1866, and later founded St. Matthew's School on the site of the present San Mateo Junior College. This school became one of the best known parochial schools of the Pacific Coast in the early days of this county. It was at this school which his father founded that Dr. William Brewer secured his early education, later attending the University of California, from which institution he graduated in 1885.

Dr. Brewer's theological studies were continued in the General Theological Seminary in New York. He was ordained a deacon of the Protestant Episcopal Church in 1888, and two years later was ordained as a priest of that Church. He received his degree of D. D. in 1928 from the Church Divinity School of the Pacific.

William Brewer was made assistant to his father as pastor of St. Matthew's church of San Mateo in 1888, and upon the death of his father in 1899 he succeeded him as pastor of that church. He remained in that capacity until 1915, when he became pastor of St. Paul's church in Burlingame. In 1929 Dr. Brewer retired to become pastor-emeritus at St. Paul's church.

Dr. Brewer when first entering the ministry became also an instructor in the St. Matthew's school. When later the school was moved from San Mateo to Hillsborough, Dr. Brewer and his family also moved to that settlement, and he was elected first mayor of that city when it was incorporated. He continued in that position for 15 years. When the school was discontinued in 1915, Dr. Brewer and his family left Hillsborough and took up their residence in Burlingame.

Dr. Brewer was active in all movements for the betterment of his community. He was registrar of the Episcopal diocese of California for 29 years, a dean of the San Jose convocation, a member of the diocesan council and a deputy to the general convention of the Episcopal church in 1828. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, of San Mateo Pyramid of Sciots, of Trafalgar Lodge of Sons of St. George, and of the San Mateo-Burlingame Rotary club. Dr. Brewer was a former president of the alumni association of the University of California, member of the American Philological association, of the Society of Colonial Wars, and of Sons of the American Revolution. He was a member also of the Phi Beta Kappa.

Dr. Brewer was active in the formation of Hillsborough as a city, and was one of the founders of the County Development Association.

In 1895 Dr. Brewer married Ellen D. Wheaton, and to them two sons were born, Wheaton Hale Brewer and William A. Brewer, Jr. Both are well-known residents of Berkeley.

Mrs. Brewer passed away in 1927, and two years later Dr. Brewer was married to Mrs. Augusta La Mott, who now survives him.

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The last rites will be conducted by The Rt. Rev. Edwin L. Parsons, Bishop of California, assisted by the Rev. Noel Porter, Archbishop of the Diocese of California, the Rev. Harold Gardner, rector of St. Paul's, and the Rev. Charles Duell of Santa Barbara.

Pallbearers will be members of the vestry of St. Paul's, Norman Rushton, Ralph E. Macduff, A. B. Cragill, H. Edwin Nowell, Dr. E. W. Cleary, Dr. R. J. Reitzel, Captain Thomas Smith W. S. Gresinger, B. F. Cator, W. S. Grisinger and Arthur Warren.

Yomecan Club Installs New Officers Here

Edwin Holmquist Installed As President; Succeeds Norbert Lambert

The Yomecan Club held a very impressive meeting on Wednesday evening, when the new officers for the coming six months were installed. The meeting was in charge of the out-going president, Norbert Lambert, who made a report of the club's accomplishments for the past six months which showed considerable participation in civic projects and in service to the youth of the community. His report showed in a very concrete way that this club is living up to the meaning underlying the name of the club, that of "young men can." The name Yomecan is made up of the first two letters of the first two words together with the last word. Reports by the outgoing secretary and treasurer were also made.

In a very impressive way the newly elected officers were called upon and the duty of the various officers explained. The gavel was then turned over to Edwin Holmquist, the new president, and Lawrence Drivon, the out-going vice-president, presented the president's button.

After the installation past president Wesley Haydock gave a speech of appreciation of the splendid accomplishments of the out-going president and presented him with the past president's button.

Edwin Holmquist told the club of the plans which he hoped to carry out with the backing of the members during the next six months, and appointed committees to carry on the various club functions.

The new officers are Edwin Holmquist, president; Elvin Guglieomoni, vice-president; Stanley Natherton, secretary; Edwin Brooks, treasurer; Walter Kellogg, Jr., historian; Laurance Drivon and Charles Irvin, directors. Laurance Drivon was appointed song leader and Charles Irvin "U-O-Me Can Man."

"Only one agency in the archdiocese of San Francisco has been authorized to publish any form of printed matter in the name of the Catholic Church or to solicit advertising for the same with the understanding that it is to benefit the church or any part thereof, directly or indirectly.

"That agency is The Monitor, official organ of the archdiocese, and the public is warned that all others attempting to use the name of the church or claiming its approbation are guilty of misrepresentation and of obtaining money under false pretenses."

Aims of Public Schools

"The main objective of the public school system has been the preparation of boys and girls for college, on the theory that a college education is a panacea for all ills,, wrote W. F. Bond, Superintendent of Education in Mississippi, in the United States Daily. He continued, in part:

"The college has handed down to us the course of study and other requirements to be met and we have struggled manfully and sometimes blindly to meet them. . . ."

"In the future the main objective of the public school system will not be preparation for college, but preparation for citizenship of the highest order. Preparation for college will be incidental. This will mean that the following things must be done:

1. A good, practical, conservative system of vocational guidance beginning in the junior high school and extending a year or so beyond high school graduation. Every normal child is capable of being developed into a good citizen, but no two children are alike and we must, therefore, take into consideration individual differences. By talking confidentially with boys and girls, by interviews with their parents and by bringing them into contact with successful business men and women, we can generally find out what place in life any of our students can fill best.

2. The course of study must be broadened. We shall continue to prepare our students for college but in addition there will be courses in vocational education. There will be such courses leading to high school graduation in agriculture, home economics, bookkeeping, typewriting, stenography, salesmanship, and auto mechanics.

"We will go on the theory that no child is 'dull' in every respect. It will be our business to find along what lines each child is bright and direct it into the course of study that will more nearly prepare it for the world in which it must live after it leaves school. Such a plan will increase the holding power of our schools and more boys and girls will be encouraged to take the entire course, for when they are graduated each one will know what he can do best and his training will have been in that direction.

"There will be more happiness in the schoolroom, fewer misfits in life and less unemployment. This change will not come very easily, because we are bound down by tradition to the system given to us by our fathers, which was good enough in its time. The change will come, however, for it is already very evident that the need for such a change is very great. Wise use of the time our children spend in the public school will be conducive to wise use of time elsewhere."

What Ails Us

The Wickersham Commission has made another report in which it discovers that the country is suffering from too much politics and too little prosecution of law violators. It recommends that the public procecutors, federal and state, should be selected with less regard to political affiliations and pulls. Criticize the Wickersham Commission all you want to but if you will take time to read the recommendations it makes you will have to agree that they are hitting the public pretty hard—telling what really ails us.

In spite of all our misunderstandings and ignorance we shall find that there is no natural force, no emotion that God has given us that cannot be turned to our good.—Harold Anson.

Back to the Farm

All of us would like to believe that times have reached the bottom and are going to get better. Some people seem to think it is all a state of mind anyhow. Yet we all know that just talking it will not make times better. Something's got to be done. And there are evidences that something is being done. For instance, out in the country there are signs of a "back to the farm movement." You see new houses being built and new clearings being made. The houses, as a rule, are small, and the clearings are not large, but they show that some new people are going to try to dig a living out of the soil. In our opinion this is the most hopeful sign of a change to a simpler and safer way of living.

Picnickers cannot expect to be given permission to camp on private property if they leave litter behind and, already, complants have been received of the debris left behind by people out to have a good time, but careless of their successors.

Most prisoners could be made into decent citizens by decent treatmeant. Then if we only had a decent social order for them to emerge into when they are released, they would remain decent.

Magna Carta Day

Of ever growing interest and importance to the American people is the annual observance of Magna Carta Day, which occurred the fifteenth day of this month. Briefly, the International Magna Carta Day Association has two objects: (1) To develop English-speaking Fellowship through the annual observance of the granting of Magna Carta. Thus we celebrate this source of our culture and obligations to one another. (2) To encourage respect for Law through a greater knowledge and appreciation of our Constitutions and of Magna Carta, their foundation.

It is stated that for over seven hundred years the Magna Carta granted the English people by King John at Runnymede has, to a considerable degree, molded the traditions, laws and culture of the Anglo-Saxon race. The observence of Magna Carta Day, which the founders of the movement hope to make an international event, chiefly seeks the development of a better understanding and fellowship among the English-glish-speaking peoples of the world, and also the encouragement of a deeper respect for law as the chief guarantee of liberty possessed by mankind.

It is unnecessary to state that the United States and Great Britain have many common ties. Two of the leading nations of the world, their interests are closely intertwined. As Elihu Root has said, "Britain and the United States face common dangers." It is in recognition of this fact that the Magna Carta Day movement was founded in the United States to encourage a closer cooperation between the English-speaking nations.

Mr. J. W. Hamilton, St. Paul, Minn., founder-secretary of the association, and a most active and conscientious worker for Anglo-American unity, states:

"In this day when conflict of interests may easily bring the more terrible one, wisdom urges nations to cling to all those things which make for peace. Magna Carta Day, more widely celebrated than ever before this year, is one of the anchors by which the nations may moor in the waters of peace.

"Our race has given to the world nothing greater than the principles embodied in the Charter of English Liberties. It is eminently fitting that Magna Carta Day should be observed annually in common as a symbol of that obedience to the law by which we have achieved greatness and of the essential unity of thought and purpose of our nations whose responsibility for the peace of the world is greater now than ever before.

"Well has it been said that 'to have produced it, to have matured it; to have preserved it, constitute the immortal claim of England upon the esteem of mankind.'

"The Great Charter is symbolic of world peace because it stands for the supremacy of the law over force. A united front among the English-speaking nations is the preponderating influence for peace, were this kinship emphasized by a day annually commemorating this bond of union. Anglo-American unity is the greatest peace factor in the world. Beside it all other issues fail. Without it humanity is lost!"

Uneasy Lies the Head

During the past twelve years the general attitude toward the Presidency of the United States has suffered a change which, if continued, will eventually affect the quality of man willing to undertake the leadership of the country.

Until the second term of President Wilson most presidents had been immune to personal attack. The presidency stood for something which should not be destroyed. It was like the flag, the symbol of Government. The office was to be respected and held aloof from disparagement.

Mary Roberts Reinhart calls attention to the fact that this immunity of the office ceased with President Wilson. She writes forcibly and fearlessly regarding the resultant situation in a provocative article in the American Magazine. "The new use of a President as a whipping boy by his political enemies is dangerous," she asserts. "Deliberate attempts are made to ruin him, merely that his party may be destroyed with him. Why is this dangerous? Because respect for the presidential office is a part of the respect for all Government, and when a hostile Senate plus an inflammatory portion of the press deliberately belittles the one, it undermines the other."

No President goes into office to destroy the country. Practical politics, personal ambition, and idealism alike dictate that he shall give the nation the best that is in him. He may appeal to the popular mind or he may not. Probably not, for there is no time in the office today for showmanship.

The presidential job, under the most favorable conditions, is a burden few men have the temperament and physique to stand without breaking. At its worst it is a man-killing position, stultifying to pride as well as to effort, and increasingly difficult to administer.

Perhaps it needs reorganizing. As things are, it will be difficult as time goes on to secure men physically and mentally able to carry it. Certainly it needs whole-hearted public support, and there should surely be a restoration of the dignity of the office and its immunity from attack.

When you find civic pride and community spirit in the small town you know it is the thing, not the synthetic product of hired boosters.

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabin-mate,

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent-a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees.

Constance gives Sheila her clothes and coaches her for the role she is to play. A first-class passenger.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Sheila's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris,

Harry Edmonds arrives in Paris. Sheila is panic-stricken. She wonders where Constance is.

To escape both Harry and the Count, she feigns illness. Some one informs her aunt in Baden-Baden that her neice is ill. The aunt radios Mr. Kerr, who radios Sheila that he is coming to Paris.

She succeeds in convising Aunt Sophia that her presence is not required in Paris. A message from Mr. Kerr tells that the his yacht is disabled and that he cannot come to Paris for some time.

Harry urges her to marry him immediately. She puts him off.

Chapter 23—

Three Is A Crowd

The Baronne de Courcy called on Sheila the following afternoon and took her to tea in a little restaurant near the entrance to the Bois. At Sheila's request, they drove there in a fiacre.

The Baronne shrugged when Sheila made the suggestion. For the life of me, Constance," she exclaimed, "I can't understand your wanting to ride in one of those smelly little carriages. You, who always wanted to drive at a sixty-mile clip. And the drivers look like pirates, too!"

When they reached the Bois, Sheila's enthusiasm ran away with her. "Let's drive through, just once," she begged.

The Baronne laughed. "One would think this was your first visit to Paris Constance. Rags saw Harry Edmonds today and Harry said that you had been literally carried away at the opera last night. And now you act like an ordinary tourist, at the sight of the Bois."

When they were having tea, and Sheila was eating cakes with a school girl's appetite, the Baronne said:

"What I really wanted to talk about is this — the Count de Bellefonte took me to luncheon, and I must say that I was considerably mystified as to why he should be putting himself out to entertain me. But I found out, soon enough. It seems that he'd heard about my house-party. Of course, he knew I wouldn't invite him, because he's never been in my set, exactly. But he seemed to be afraid that Harry Edmonds was going to be one of the guests. That worried him a good bit. When I told him that I knew nothing of Harry's plans, he seemed greatly relieved. And then he smiled that feline smile of his and said we'd probably see each other a lot in the next few weeks, because he will be at Cannes, too, visiting a friend who has a villa there. Now ——"

Sheila looked helplessly at her hostess. Her hopes for a little rest and quiet were vanishing. And, if the Count followed her to Cannes, heaven knows what Harry would say, not to mention Constance's father, if he should hear of it!

Some way must be found to keep the Count in Paris. She wanted to weep with exasperation at the collapse of her plans. With Harry in London, the Count in Paris, and herself in Cannes, she had looked forward to a few peaceful days.

Constance's father was in Sicily, and likely to be there for some little time; Aunt Sophie was in Baden-Baden, and unwilling to leave, so Sheila did not have to fear any complications from that quarter, and there remained only the anxiety that she felt because of Constance's failure to communicate with her, or arrive in Paris as per schedule.

Now the Count had destroyed all her chances for a respite. He would again be at her heels, and something unpleasant would be sure to happen.

"And I warn you," the Baronne was saying, "that Carlo detests Bellefonte. Something about a difference of opinion as to a gambling debt. There'll be trouble, if they meet. So my dear, can't you just ask the Count to give my place a wide berth, when he comes to Cannes, even though you are a member of my house-party?"

Sheila promised to do her best. Trouble about a gambling debt! That might lead to more unpleasantness. So she said:

"I'll do my best, but you know how easily he loses his temper, and what a scene he can make."

Baronne, rolling her eyes to Heaven. "I was there the day he threw his valet overboard from the tender at Cherbourg, just because the man had forgotten to pack his decorations. You know, if Bellefonte isn't hung with bangles, he doesn't feel dressed. Well, he's your problem, since he seems to have centered his attentions upon you."

"He certainly is my problem," sighed Sheila. "And what am I to do with him?"

When she returned to the hotel, a corsage bouquet and a note from the Count awaited her. Would she dine with him and go dancing afterward?

"I suppose I must," she groaned, "since I went to dinner and the opera with Harry last night."

But she forgot her troubles for a little while in preparing for the evening. It was delightful to be waited upon; to wear a silken negligee, after a bath in delicately perfumed water; to decide what gown to wear.

Fanchette shampooed her hair, helped her dress, and laid her evening coat about her shoulders. "Mademoiselle looks ravishing. The Count will be so proud.

Sheila suddenly remembered the tight-lipped way in which Cousin Dora would say, when she was dressing for a party:

"Handsome is as handsome does, and what you'll do no one can tell."

Every now and then, the comic side of her predicament claimed her attention, and this was one of the times. She laughed, and felt better for it.

"Just goes to show that it doesn't pay to be lugubrious, no matter what comes along. I'm going to have a good time this evening even if I do have to put up with the Count's society."

In this cheerful frame of mind, she strolled about the room, humming snatches from the opera she had heard the night before, and wondring what was detaining the Count. He was usually prompt to the second. But she was not worried. In fact, this interval of quiet served to heighten the feeling of security and assurance that had come over her.

When the telephone-bell rang, she waved Fanchette aside and took up the instrument. There was a furious crackling on the wire; then Harry's voice.

"Constance, is that you? I want to see you. . . You're going out? . . .I'm coming down immediately . . .Never mind why. Wait until I come. Don't you dare leave the hotel until I see you. Remember . . .You'll regret it, if you do. I won't be made a fool of any longer. ."

The connection was broken, and, as Sheila started helplessly at the instrument, the maid ushered in the Count de Bellefonte.

WALTER DAMROSCH TO LEAD WOODLAND CONCERT SUNDAY

Walter Damrosch, whose appearance last Sunday as guest conductor at the opening concert of the season in the Woodland Theatre at Hillsbiriugh attracted a record-breaking audience, will make his second and final appearance at the open air theatre next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The symphonic offering of the afternoon will be Glazounow's Symphony No. 5 in B. flat which has not previously been heard locally. Two other numbers included in the program will be in the nature of novelties and will also be given for the first time at these concerts. They are "Pavane" by Faure, an orchestration of early dance music, and an exquisitely delightful excerpt from the ballet, Cydalise and the Satyr" by Pierne. This number is the "Entrance of the Little Fauns," which has a grotesque little march that accompanies a number of small fauns, who led by their teacher, an old faun, are on their way to school. The suggestion, expressed musically, of the scampering fauns, their gabblings and guarreling, and the scolding admonitions of the teacher is a fascinating piece of orchestra writing.

The second half of the program will be devoted to selections from several of the Wagnerian music so that the younger generation of concert goers might have the opportunity and privilege of hearing this master who is thoroughly familiar with the traditions of these great operas. The number to be played next Sunday will include The Prelude from "Lohengrin," and also of "Die Meistersinger;" the Prelude and Liebestod from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Processional of the Gods from the last scene of "Das Rheingold."

It is anticipated that Sir Hamilton Harty, the second of the season's conductors, will arrive from Manchester, England in time to attend next Sunday's concert ,and Arthur Rodzinski of Los Angeles who will conduct later in the season now visiting in San Francisco will also attend.

MENLO PARK

The pastors of the diocese of San Francisco are having their annual retreat at St. Patrick's Seminary. Archbishop Hanna is making the retreat with them. The assistant pasors will make their retreat at the same place next week. A noted Jesuit priest of New York will conduct the services.

A marriage license was issued in San Jose on Saturday to Cyril Morris Newton, 24, and Florence E. Bussjaeger, 21, both of Menlo Park.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters parlors are bending every effort to make their picnic on July 5 in the Mangini Park a success. Committees are at work making final arrangements for the big event. There will be races, tugs of war, dancing and other amusements to make the day one of pleasure and happiness. Joy will have no bounds. Make no other date but come to the picnic and have a good time.

The death of Michael J. Hanrahan is San Francisco last week recalls his activities in Menlo Park in the late seventies when he was principal of the grammar school, then located on Grove avenue. The Broggi residence was a portion of the old school building. Mr. Hanrahan was an old Irish scholar, mathematics being his major study. Hanrahan was a brilliant young Irishman, athletic, energetic and ambitious to succeed in his profession. After leaving here he became the freight agent for the Southern Pacific Company at San Jose and later engaged in business in San Francisco. A number of his former pupils still live in Menlo Park, while many others have joined the silent majority. Those living will recall his kindly nature, his interest in his pupils and his untiring labors in their behalf.

The E. M. Rankin home on Fremont avenue has been leased to B. P. Lyons, a New York Investor, who intends to live in California.

The Menlo Park fire department is kept busy these days responding to calls from all parts of the district. Grass fires are numerous, causing the department to be always on its mettle.

About twenty members of Menlo Park Woman's Club held a delightful picnic at Alum Rock Park, San Jose, on Tuesday, June 17th. Arrangements for the affair were in the hands of Mrs. J. T. Aabel, Mrs. M. Milward and Mrs. Jay T. Cooper and all were agreed that it was one of the most pleasant affairs ever held by the organization. The club members are planning a journey to Forest Lake, the summer home of Mrs. Jay Cooper, on June 30th.

MENLO CITY COUNCIL——

The city council met Tuesday evening, all members being present.

A protest was read from the residents of University Drive and Santa Cruz avenue asking that no permit be granted to S. DeNatalli to establish a second hand store in his building on the corner of Santa Cruz avenue and University Drive as the locality was a residential district. The communication was filed.

The planning commission in a communication asked the council to take steps to replace the present numbers on dwelling and business houses and to place the names of streets in Stanford Park and on Hoover street on the curbing. The original method in numbering the houses was from Middlefield Road and west to the city limits. The system suggested was to number from the highway east and west. The matter was referred to the city engineer to report at the next meeting.

City Engineer Mehl filed his report as building inspector which was as follows: Permits granted were: Beardsley, Doyle street, $50; Mrs. G. Carlson, Live Oak, $4,000; C. M. Stevenson, College avenue, $2,000; E. C. Vipham, University Drive, $200; Mrs. S. Fugazi, -50; E. M. Brickey, $4,500.

The passage of the amended license ordinance went over until the next meeting of the council.

The city clerk was instructed to inform the county auditor of the boundary lines of Hoover street and Stanford Park assessment districts.

The city engineer was authorized to prepare plans and specifications for improvements on University Drive, Arbor Road from Valparaiso avenue to Santa Cruz avenue and Rose and Millie streets.

The superintendent of streets was instructed to notify the telephone company to protect its interests in the vicinity of Pine street and other thoroughfares where the present street work is being done. Trees are cut down where the wires of the telephone system run through the branches.

City Clerk Fannie I. Kurtz was given a leave of thirty days from the state. She is leaving in a few days to visit her sister in Portland, Oregon.

The sum of $3000 was ordered transferred from the general fund to the street improvement fund.

Mr. Alaxander was given permission to remove three living oak trees on his property on Live Oak avenue.

The council adjourned to meet on June 30, to take up the garbage question and to award a contract. There are two rival concerns bidding for the contract.

Felix McGinnis, vice president of the Southern Pacific Company, was granted a permit to use fire works at his home on Arbor avenue on July 4.

Joseph Cull, the veteran sportsman and painter is alarmingly ill at his apartments in the Kuck hotel. His friends are at his bedside awaiting the moment when he will answer the final summons. Cull is a pioneer of Menlo Park and well-known in the community.

Edward Derry the local capitalist, will wed Miss Dowing at a nuptial mass in Mission Dolores Church tomorrow morning. Relatives and friends from Menlo Park are to attend the cremony.

Menlo Parlor, N. S. G. W., at a recent meeting elected the following officers for the term: J. E. Bracesco, past president; W. H. Weeden, president; C. T. Maloney, first vice president: Al Kavanaugh, third vice president; George Murray, marshal; Fred Johnson, inside sentinel; Harry Albright, outside sentinel; F. W. Johnson, recording secretary; trustees, D. E. O'Keefe, Samuel M. Shortridge and Edward Derry.

The Menlo Park Sanitary Board at a meeting held on Tusday evening awarded a contract to W. J. Tobin for sewer construction work to be done in the Hermosa tract and neighboring streets for $6577.36. Other bids were as follows: L. L. Page, $8064.86, H. E. Conner, $7,796.30, Robert McNair, $8158.90, W. J. Tobin, $6577.68, Oakland Constructing Company, $6777.68, Delta Dredging Company $7391.42, M. P. Cambar, $5761.28, C. & H. Construction Company $8666.15, Geo. De Golver, $7000.26, A. J. Raisch $9,332.06. The estimate of the engineer, Mr. Dimmitt, was $7,000. The low bid of Cambar was discarded and the awards made to the next lowest bidder. James Davis conducted the legal part of the proceedings. He was recently appointed an attorney for the sanitary board in place of Lee Ross, who resigned some time ago.

John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has honored Henry Dixon Cowell, the Menlo Park music composer. The Foundation will send him to Europe for a study of extra-European musical system material.

Wednesday evening the Chursh of the Nativity was the scene of a pretty wedding when James E. Murray, the widely known farmer and capitalist, was united in marriage to Mrs. Louise K. Hebert, one of Menlo's most charming belles. Promptly at 8 o'clock, to the beautiful strains of Ave Maria the bridal party moved down the aisle of the church to the altar where it was met by Father Thomas Kennedy, who performed the ceremony, assisted by Father Burke. During the ceremony the sweet notes of the Ave Maria filled the edifice lending a charm to the scene. Thomas L. Murray, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman and Miss Angela Joulie, the pretty sister of the bride, was maid of honor. As the bridal party reached the outside door a shower of rice greeted the couple as an automobile drove up and conveyed the young people to the home of the bride where a wedding supper was served. The church was comfortably filled with friends of the Mr. and Mrs. Murray. They will continue to reside in Menlo Park.

Picking Your Right Job

This is the third of a series by leaders in different professions and business in which they tell young men and women about the opportunities and problems in the fields in which they have gained distinction. Col. Frederic A. Molitor is president of the American Institute of Consulting Engineers.

United Press Associations.

By Col. FREDERIC A. MOLITOR
As told to J. V. FitzGerald

The various branches of engineers recognized through the five national societies are civil, mechanical, mining, electrical and chemical engineers, who follow the practice of engineering, according to the name applied to the societies.

Engineers, in my opinion, are born, not made. One must have a practical mind to start with. It must be moulded by discipline and tempered by experience. If you are to gain success, you should have a liking for mechanics because considerable of your work will involve contrivances of this nature and you likewise have to be good in mathematics. In setting forth such requirements as these I am covering the whole field of engineering. They apply with equal force to the different branches.

To you, who are interested in engineering as a career, I would say this: You must get good marks in mathematics and have a liking for mechanics and physics while you are still in preparatory school, and in college, you should have an aptitude for scientific studies.

In the past it was not absolutely necessary to have a college degree to get a job as an engineer. Now, however, it is, because the applicant is in competition with about sixty thousand engineers now in practice in this country. From this fact, you will see the need for proficiency in the studies I have named.

Four years of training in college is enough scholastic work to qualify you to earn your living as an engineer. You will, however, need several years of hard, practical experience.

You will do well to spend what time you can spare from technical subjects, in studying economics, contract law and finance. Knowledge of these matters is most helpful to an engineer as he progresses.

Do not neglect to obtain as much outdoor exercise as you can. If you are interested in athletics, engage in the sport for which you are best equipped. You will need a strong body and a well-trained mind to stand up under the demands of your profession.

Generally speaking, about $150 a month will be the initial pay in the different branches of the profession. After that, your salary will be based on your own proven ability and practical experience.

There will always be a need for good engineers and a real opportunity awainting them, but there are too many mediocre ones being turned out of the colleges and technical schools every year.

SPEAKING of SPORT

BY FRANK GETTY

Pressure Often Spoils Chamionship Golf

That even the best of the golfers collapse under pressure was demonstrated again in the 1931 British Open tournament, when Jose Jurado of Argentina and Macdonald Smith of New York threw away chances to win the tourney on the final holes.

When Tommy Armour, one of the early finishers, posted his score of 296 he received little attention. Despite his brillian 71 on the final round, several players appeared likely to better his score and it was not until Jurado and Smith "blew up" that the gallery realized Tommy had won the title.

Jurado's collapse was the more spectacular in that he led the field when the final round started, with a five-stroke advantage over Armour. The colorful Argentinan held his lead throughout the first nine holes of the final round and a score of three over par for the last nine holes would have given him the title outright.

Juroda reached the 17th tee needing only the generously appraised par figure of 4-5 for the 428-yard 17th and the 453-yard 18th to win. Two-five would have tied.

He attempted to "play safe" by using a iron off the 17th tee, but instead of steering the ball to a snug resting place he topped the shot into a brook. A six meant that he could hope for no better than a tie, but he clung to this fallacious safety-first tactics and again chose to play short of the stream which guarded the green. Instead of getting home with the dead from point blank range next shot, he relied on pitching across the brook. His half-pitch left him with a 9-foot putt and he was short with his first putt.

Dash of Daring Might Have Wo nChampionship

The over-cautiousness cast Jurado the title. A dash of daring and a willingness to gamble on an all-or-nothing shot almost certainly would have given Argentina its first British Open title.

Macdonald Smith's failure to win after taking medalist honors in the qualifying round with 70-71—141, was in keeping with the long Scot's reputation of "always a contender, never a champion." Smith counted heavily on winning the title and spent a month practicing on the Carnoustie course, which he left many years ago to win fame in the United States.

After his brilliant qualifying round play, Smith slumped when the tourney began and turned in a 75-77—152 for the first two days of play. He fought his way back into the race with a 71 in the morning round on the final day and at the end of 54 holes was tied for second place with Arthur Havers, three strokes behind Jurado and two strokes in front of Armour.

At the turn of the final round the scores were: Jurado 256, Smith 258 and Armour 260. Smith continued his steady play during the early part of the incoming round and reached the 70th tee holding a one stroke lead over Armour.

Armour had turned in par figures of 3, 4, 5, for the last three holes, which measure 235, 428 and 453 yards respectively. Par figures were all Smith needed for a win, but his game collapsed and he finished with a 5-6-5.

LEHIGH LOSES MANY STARS BY GRADUATION

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 22 (UP)—Graduation took a toll heavier than usual among the various athletic squads of Lehigh University.

Outstanding among the 64 athletic letter men of the senior class were Warren Schaub of Freeland, Pa., and Robert Engelman, Yonkers, N. Y., each of whom had won letters in three different sports.

Schaub captained both the soccer and the basketball teams in his senior year and was a member of the lacrosse team for two seasons. Engleman won varsity awards in tennis, track and cross-country.

Thirteen seniors won letters in two sports. Among the football men in the two-letter group were Tom Ayre, Miners Mills, Pa.; Sam Hall, Hackensack, N. J.; Russel Hoaster, Lebanon, Pa., Frank Jones, Washington D. C.; Francis Evers, Buffalo, N. Y., and Edward Blood, Philadelphia.

John Engel, Stamford, Conn., notional intercollegiate 118-pound wrestling champion; Paul Seal, Factoryville, Pa., eastern intercollegiate 145-pound wrestling champion, and Hall Cushman, Brooklyn, swimming record holder, were also among the graduating group.

Blackbird Whips Squirrel

ROCHESTER, Minn., June 20 — A fight to the finish between a blackbird and a squirrel was witnessed by Mrs. D. Diegel in her back yard recently. The fight took place in a tree. The blackbird was the victor when it knocked the squirrel from a branch, causing it to fall 30 feet to the ground.

Power Drum Plows Feld

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 21 — (UP)—Deb Voorhis, 60, owner of an island farm near here, plows his land without the aid of a horse. A power drum on one side of a field draws his plow by means of a steel cable. Voorhise, with his son, has lived on the island 47 years. Two one-room cabins are the only buildings.

Mongrel Dog Is Honored

DICKENSON, Mont., June 20 — (UP)— Jiggs, a mongrel dog, has been recommended to the National Anti-vivsection Society for decoration as a life saver. The dog belongs to Eddie Scheeler and is crediteed with saving the life of Raymond Kuhn, who was in danger of drowning.

Texas Ready For Stamp Tax

AUSTIN, Tex., June 23 (UP)—A hundred million stamps have been ordered to begin enforcement of the Texas cigarette lag, which goes into effect on August 22. The stamps will have the Texas state seal as their design. This is a five-pointed star surrounded by a wreath. The tax is three cents on a package of 20.

Swedes Hin Russian Prize

Stockholm, June 22 (UP)—Four young Swedish architects have triumphed in Soviet Russia, from where they have joinely carried home a prize in an international competition for a people's theatre at Charkow. Four hundred architects of many nationalities entered the contest, but only 12 prizes were awarded.

Experts Lift Whale's Face With Hot Wax

Huge Mammal's Beauty Restored by Using Paraffine

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June. 22 (UP)—"Your whale. Mr. Hayward, needs its face lifted. It is sagging badly."

Imagine being faced with the problem of a shrinking whale 1,500 miles from the ocean! Ralph Hayward faced and met the predicament during a tour of the east with one of California's biggest products.

For eight months, and over 30,000 miles of railroad track Hayward escorted and pampered his pet. Dead, to be sure, but nevertheless in constant need of care.

"The problem we faced when we decided to exhibit the whale was 'will it keep?, " said Hayward.

Embalming Used

"We called in a professional embalmer and, like Jonah, he entered the whale's interior, removed a 1,200-pound heart and a thousand gallons of blood, and then pumped 10,000 gallons of embalming fluid into it.

"After a few weeks, our leading lady began to shrink. Her carefree, open countenance sagged disconsolately. We called in some experts, and they said face-lifting would restore her beauty.

" 'Go ahead and face-lift," we said. So they shot the carcass full of paraffin. They climbed all over it, shooting in the hot wax, just as though they were building up a boxer's nose.

"You never saw such a resurrection. The whale returned to life, glistening and fat."

Cities Skeptical

Some of the cities, Hayward added, were skeptical about letting them exhibit. Chicago was the worst, he continued, but in Cleveland he executed a contract with the city making it a partner in a deal which allowed the use of a city-owned track in the public square.

Later, Hayward said, he sold the whale to Cleveland, and Col. H. J. Twelvetree, commissioner of the public auditorium, put it on "permanent" exhibition.

Strange to say, the best business was not in inland cities. "We did a tremendous business on the New England coast, birthplace of the whaling industry. Old whalers came for miles to see a whale on a railroad car," he added.

Politically Speaking

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, June 22—(UP) — Job-hunting season in Sacramento opened with the close of the bill-signing period.

Already Governor Rolph is besieged by office-seekers. They swarm all over his office and into his private conferences. In addition to completing the ranks in his official family left unfilled for various reasons, the governor has more than a score of judgeships to fill in Los Angeles alone, not to mention a half dozen others throughout the state.

It was Friend W. Richardson who broke all records for appointing judges during his term of office. Likewise he was the champion vetoer of bills. Governor Rolph will probably wrest the title as judge namer from Richardson, and set up a new championship of his own for having broken the record for number of bills signed.

Most lucrative of the jobs the governor has to pass out when the new laws go into effect August 14 is that of state oil and gas commissioner, paying $10,000 a year. Charles Stevens, prominent Oakland oil man, can have the position if he wants it, according to state capitol reports.

Three members of the new board of prison terms and parols are to be named for four years, the chairman receiving $6,000 and the other members $5,000 per year. The governor may also appoint an additional secretary to his staff, at $5,000.

Sparks flew at the first meeting of the state board of social welfare in Los Angeles under the directorship of Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, "Angel of Broadway." After the smoke had cleared away, Mrs. Splivalo held the scalps of four employees in the form of that many resignations. These were Miss Mabel Weed, secretary of the board; Miss Cecil Mosbacher, superintendent of adoptions; Mrs. Josephine Yates, Los Angeles agent, and Mrs. Dorothy Freidlander, San Francisco agent.

It begins to look as if the threatened referendum on the congressional and assembly reapportionment bills will materialize, petitions having been circulated in San Francisco and Oakland. Two months are left to gain the 70,000 signatures required. If the measure qualifies for the ballot, Governor Rolph has promised to call a special election on the same day in May, 1932, as the presidential primary.

It cost Assemblyman Dan Emmett of Santa Paula just $100 for socking a Sacramento traffic officer in the nose during the last legislative session, it was decided in police court here this week. Emmett innocently "jaywalking" across the street, hit the officer when the latter seized and twisted an arm after whistling him to a stop.

Former Governor and Mrs. C. C. Young, their daughters, Barbara — recent honor graduate fom Stanford — and Lucy, and Miss Lena Young, have left for a year's tour of the United States and Europe. They will spend some time on the Atlantic seaboard before sailing for France and England.

*Consider your Adam's Apple!!
Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"
When you visit your physician for your periodic health examination, one of the very first things he asks you to do is to open your mouth wide, and to say "Ah." He is examining the delicate lining of your throat. "Ah!" There is not a man or woman who could even make this simple sound, if in the throat there were no Adam's Apple. For your Adam's Apple is your larynx—the voice box containing your vocal chords. And what a delicate piece of Nature's handiwork the Adam's Apple is. A slight cold—even a tiny particle lodged in the throat—and our voice often grows husky. In acute cases, we may even lose our voice for several days. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants—Reach for a LUCKY instead—remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that through its exclusive "TOASTING" process expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos. These expelled irritants are sold to manufacturers of chemical compounds. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder 20,679 American physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating. LUCKIES are always kind to your throat. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple."

State Prepares For Inrush of Tourists

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 25—California is preparing to receive the biggest crop of tourists in history this year.

Thousands of visitors from every other state in the union are already beginning to pour through the highway gates to the state, receiving an official welcome at the border checking stations, according to Frank G. Snook, chief of the division of motor vehicles.

Records of all cars entering the state with license plates other than those issued by California are kept. If the motorist intends to remain in California less than 10 days he is advised to proceed. If longer, he is advised to take out a visitor's permit which gives him the right to remain in the state 6 months without securing a California license—the most liberal provision of any state in the union.

"Our men at these stations are able to give tourists much valuable information concerning the points of scenic interest, and the best roads," said Snook. "They are warned of state laws against throwing cigarette stubs from cars, which may start forest fires. They are told of the speed limit and the necessity for staying within it.

"The automobile tourist crop is worth many thousands of dollars to California and greater numbers should be encouraged to come here. No place in the world can offer such ideal motoring conditions so many days in the year.

"We estimate that 175,000 persons visited California last year in the 91,247 cars that received visitors permits. The average sum spent by these tourists was at least $50, making a grand total of $13,750,000."

With the approach of the playtime season, the need of careful preparation for the vacation motor trip cannot be too greatly emphasized, Snook says.

No motorist should endanger lives of himself, his family or others by starting with a car having faulty brakes, glaring head-lights or defective vulnerable parts. No camping equipment should project further than the hub caps on the left, or more than 6 inches beyond the hub caps on the right sides.

"When driving on steep roads in the mountains use your low and second gears," he recommended. "They were put on the car for that purpose. Keep well to the right at all times, but particularly on the curves."

WALTHAM, Mass., (UP)—After swallowing poison, Eric Gellersted, 45, decided he didn't want to die after all. So he hurriedly procured a dictionary, found the proper antidote for the poison, took it, and recovered.

Washington Girl Scouts sell a plant to Mrs. George Akerson, wife of President Hoover's former secretary, while Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, wife of War Secretary, who has just purchased one, looks on. Proceeds of the flower sale will defray the cost of sundial recently given Mrs. Hoover, honorary president of the Girl Scouts.

Studies Medicine But is Movie Star

"Dr. George O'Brien!"

This was the dream of Dan O'Brien, then chief-of-police of San Francisco, for his son. He hoped to see these letters on the door of a spacious suite in a San Francisco building.

But fate made entirely different arrangements.

Young O'Brien was studying medicine at Santa Clara University in California in accordance with the wishes of his father, when the World war intervened and O'Brien enlisted in the Navy.

At the close of the war he came home and instead of returning to his medical books, became a motion picture actor. His first part was a "bit" in a Tom Mix picture, following which he was chosen to play the leading role in "The Iron Horse" in which he was an outstanding success.

O'Brien is a superbly proportioned and muscularly developed chap. He can box, wrestle, and ride with any man. In all his pictuures, including "Lone Star Ranger," and "Last Of The Duanes," this athletic prowess has been a valuable asset.

"Fair Warning," Fox movietone outdoor drama, his latest picture attraction at the Sequoia Theatre, is based on Max Brand's thrilling story, "The Untaimed," which was adapted for the screen by Ernest L. Pascal. Alfred L. Werker directed.

Old Formations Exposed by Cut

ALTOONA, Pa., June 24—(UP)—Geologists gathered here recently to observe what they termed the best exposure of the older rocks of the earth's crust that can be seen within as small an area anywhere in the East.

The exposures are most apparent in the Gallitzin, Altoona, Tyrone and Bellefonte regions.

A railroad cut near Gallitzin reveals rocks of the Middle and Lower Carboniferous and Upper Devonian ages to a thickness of 7,750 feet and in a nearby valley similar rocks stand almost vertical to bring the total exposure to a depth of 11,975 feet.

In a gap in the Bald Eagle Mountain, near Tyrone, a 21,000-foot exposure is offered glimpses of the strata of the rocks of the Lower Devonian, Silurian, Ordovician, Cambrian and Middle Cambrian systems, the last the oldest system containing identifiable remains of life forms.

The geologists also discovered thin beds of clay, called bentonite, one or two feet thick, thought to have been volcanic ash blown out of a volcano some 400,000,000 years ago.

Much of London's fog is smoke!

Use Gas and keep your city clean

THE famous London fogs are most often nothing but clouds of smoke. And smoke consists of soot, ash, and sulphur compounds.

California cities are eliminating the smoke nuisance by using Gas—the cleanest fuel.

Gas is delivered to you clean and burns clean.

As a result, health-giving rays of sunlight shine down without obstruction. The outside of your home does not need re-painting as often. Soot does not enter your home to cause you to clean house.

If you are proud of your city, help keep it clean by using Gas for cooking, water heating, and house heating.

The local dealers or the P. G. and E. will demonstrate the modern Gas appliances.
